Kurosawa, Y.Tailoring molecularly imprinted resins for the isolation of peripheral benzodiazepines and related compounds from plasma and urine. A 2-3D cubic model was proposed for the molecular recognition process of peripheral benzodiazepines (PBZDs) and related compounds (PRCs) by the molecularly imprinted polymers (MIPs). The theoretical study indicates the 3D cubic configuration is suitable for a maximum selectivity and minimum cross-reactivity for PRCs. By using this model, we designed a novel MIP with an appropriate porous structure and hydrophobic and electrostatic binding sites for the selective recognition of PBZDs and PRCs. The porous structure of the MIP beads was characterized by a significant reduction in the number of mesopores, which resulted in the loss of the recognition ability of the template. The procedure was then successfully applied to analyze samples from volunteers' urine and plasma. The limit of detection and limit of quantitation were as low as 5-10 ng/ml and 15-30 ng/ml, respectively.using System; using System.Collections.Generic; using System.Linq; using System.Text; using System.Threading.Tasks; namespace Domain.Socioboard.Model { public class StatusChangeCount { public Guid Id { get; set; } public int comment_id { get; set; } public string status_value { get; set; } public DateTime date_create { get; set; } public DateTime date_update { get; set; } public string by_type { get; set; } public Guid status_giver { get; set; } public Guid status_receiver { get; set; } public bool is_selected { get; set; }
